The White House of the Confederacy

The White House of the Confederacy is located in Richmond, Virginia, and it was once the home of Confederate President Jefferson Davis. The house is said to be haunted by the ghosts of Confederate soldiers who died during the Civil War. Visitors to the house have reported seeing apparitions of soldiers, hearing disembodied voices, and feeling cold spots.

St. John's Church

St. John's Church is located in Richmond, Virginia, and it is one of the oldest churches in the United States. The church is said to be haunted by the ghost of George Washington, who was a member of the church.

Visitors to the church have reported seeing an apparition of Washington, and they have also heard the sound of his footsteps in the church's attic.

The Poe Museum

The Poe Museum is located in Richmond, Virginia, and it is dedicated to the life and work of Edgar Allan Poe. The museum is said to be haunted by the ghost of Poe, who died in Richmond in 1849. Visitors to the museum have reported seeing an apparition of Poe, and they have also heard the sound of his typewriter in the museum's library.

The USS Monitor

The USS Monitor was a Union ironclad warship that fought in the Battle of Hampton Roads during the Civil War. The Monitor was sunk during the battle, and it is now a National Historic Landmark. The wreck of the Monitor is said to be haunted by the ghosts of the sailors who died on board. Divers who have explored the wreck have reported seeing apparitions of sailors, and they have also heard the sound of gunfire and explosions.

The Jamestown Settlement

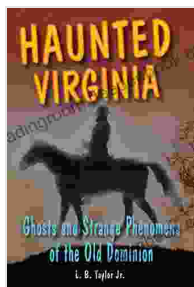

The Jamestown Settlement is a living history museum located in Jamestown, Virginia. The museum recreates the life of the early English colonists who settled in Jamestown in 1607. The settlement is said to be haunted by the ghosts of the colonists who died there. Visitors to the settlement have reported seeing apparitions of colonists, and they have also heard the sound of their voices.

The Winchester Mystery House

The Winchester Mystery House is located in San Jose, California, but it was built by Sarah Winchester, the widow of William Wirt Winchester, the heir to the Winchester rifle fortune. Sarah Winchester was a believer in spiritualism, and she believed that the ghosts of the people who had been killed by Winchester rifles were haunting her. She built the Winchester Mystery House to confuse the ghosts and prevent them from finding her. The house is said to be haunted by the ghosts of the Winchester rifle victims, and visitors to the house have reported seeing apparitions, hearing disembodied voices, and feeling cold spots.
