The Breadwinner Guitar is an electric guitar designed by Ovation Guitars in collaboration with the film "The Breadwinner." The guitar is inspired by the film's protagonist, Parvana, a young Afghan girl who disguises herself as a boy in order to support her family. The Breadwinner Guitar is a symbol of hope and resilience, and its unique design reflects the film's message of female empowerment.

The Breadwinner Guitar features a unique body shape that is inspired by the traditional Afghan rubab. The guitar's body is made from mahogany, and it has a solid spruce top. The guitar's neck is made from maple, and it has a rosewood fingerboard. The Breadwinner Guitar is equipped with two Ovation OP-4B pickups, which provide a warm and clear sound.

The Breadwinner Guitar was first unveiled at the 2018 NAMM Show. The guitar was a huge hit with attendees, and it has since been featured in a number of publications, including Guitar World and Premier Guitar. The Breadwinner Guitar is now available for purchase at Ovation Guitars dealers worldwide.

In addition to the guitar, Ovation Guitars has also released a documentary about the making of the Breadwinner Guitar. The documentary, titled "Give It A Try," follows the journey of the guitar from its inception to its completion. The documentary features interviews with the filmmakers, the guitar designers, and the musicians who played on the guitar.

"Give It A Try" is a powerful and inspiring film that tells the story of the Breadwinner Guitar and the message of hope and resilience that it represents. The film is a must-see for anyone who is interested in the guitar, music, or the power of female empowerment.
