The Society of the Middle East 20 (SOME 20) is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the study of the Middle East. Founded in 1949, SOME 20 is the oldest and largest organization of its kind in the United States.

SOME 20's mission is to promote understanding of the Middle East through research, education, and public outreach. The organization brings together scholars, students, and professionals from all disciplines to share their knowledge and insights about the region.

History

SOME 20 was founded in 1949 by a group of scholars who were interested in promoting the study of the Middle East. The organization's first meeting was held in Washington, D.C., and was attended by a small group of scholars from the United States and the Middle East.

Over the years, SOME 20 has grown into the largest organization of its kind in the United States. The organization has a membership of over 1,000 scholars, students, and professionals from all disciplines.

Membership

SOME 20 is open to anyone with an interest in the Middle East. The organization offers a variety of membership levels, including individual, student, and institutional memberships.

SOME 20 members receive a number of benefits, including:

- Access to the organization's journal, the Middle East Journal
- Discounts on conference registration fees
- Networking opportunities with other scholars and professionals
- Access to the organization's online resources

Contributions to Middle East Studies

SOME 20 has made significant contributions to the study of the Middle East. The organization has:

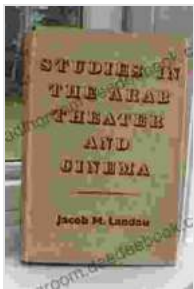

- Published over 500 books and articles on the Middle East
- Hosted over 100 conferences and workshops on the Middle East
- Provided research grants to scholars working on the Middle East

- Educated the public about the Middle East through its outreach programs

SOME 20 is a vital resource for scholars, students, and professionals who are interested in the Middle East. The organization provides a platform for sharing knowledge and insights about the region, and it plays a key role in promoting understanding of the Middle East.

The Society of the Middle East 20 is a leading organization for the study of the Middle East.
