Owen opened his clinic to injured and displaced pets, working around the clock to provide medical care and comfort. He treated hundreds of animals, many of whom had been through unimaginable trauma. Owen's story is a testament to the human-animal bond and the power of compassion in the face of disaster.

A Call to Action

When Hurricane Ian made landfall in Florida, Owen knew he had to help. He immediately opened his clinic to animals in need, offering free medical care and shelter.

Owen's clinic quickly became a hub for animal rescue efforts. People from all over the county brought their injured and displaced pets to Owen for help. Owen and his staff worked tirelessly to treat the animals, often working long hours without sleep.

Saving Lives

Owen's efforts saved the lives of hundreds of animals. He treated animals with severe injuries, including broken bones, lacerations, and infections. He also provided medical care to animals that had been displaced from their homes and were in need of food, water, and shelter.

In addition to providing medical care, Owen and his staff also provided comfort and support to the animals' owners. Many of the owners were traumatized by the hurricane, and Owen's compassion and kindness helped them to cope with the aftermath of the storm.

A Community Hero

Owen's work has been praised by the community and by animal welfare organizations. He has been recognized for his dedication to helping animals and for his compassion in the face of disaster.

Owen's story is a reminder of the important role that veterinarians play in disaster relief. Veterinarians are often the first responders to animal emergencies, and they play a vital role in saving lives and providing comfort to animals in need.

Dr. Mark Owen is an inspiration to us all. His story is a reminder that even in the darkest of times, there is always hope. His compassion and dedication to helping animals is a shining example of the human spirit.

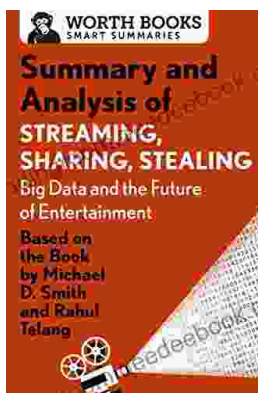

We are grateful to Dr. Owen and all of the other veterinarians who work tirelessly to save animals in need.
